HOW MUCH ARE THEY WORTH ... these soft green hills that were moulded by centuries of wind and rain, these massive oaks and fragrant pines mirrored in still, clear water? What is the value of clean, fresh air ... of slience ... of beauty? While these cattle graze peacefully at Rancho San Carlos, at the upper end of Robinson Canyon Road, residents on the Monterey Peninsula will join people across the nation today in observing "Earth Day". In thousands of teach-ins and special programs, the emphasis will be on ecology and environment, on what they mean and how to preserve them. This exquisite scene is part of the environment, the natural heritage of Carmel Valley. Is it worth something to you? Are you doing anything about it? See pages 2 and 3 for some local sidelights to the "Earth Day" observance.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

Citizens of Monterey County are alarmed at the apalling behavior of Mr. Coffin, Superintendent of the Monterey County Office of Education, in not renewing the contracts of his top aids.

I have known James Stefon for 18 years during which he has served our county schools with great competence and unsurpassed devotion to our children. He has had responsibility for many educational programs in the county office - counseling and guidance, migrant education, vocational education, Valley Adult School, Neighborhood Youth Corps, education of gifted children and many others.

He has also given of his time freely and generously to many community services. He has worked with many Parent Teacher Associations, the Youth Science Center, the Anti-Poverty Council, the County Mental Health Association, the Monterey Junior League, the Salinas Junior Women's Club and with numerous other organizations.

His dedication to education in Monterey County has been acknowledged repeatedly throughout our county and state. in recognition of his outstanding ability, he has been asked to serve on a number of committees in Sacramento by the State Department of Education.

Dr. William Oliver has built one of the finest spinal education programs in California working tirelessly to recruit and train fine teachers. He has designed outstanding school buildings for handicapped children. His programs serve as models for educators who visit here from all over the state.

Only recently, Dr. Oliver was publicly praised and promoted by the same Mr. Coffin who now seeks to dismiss him.

Mr. Coffin is seeking to escape the responsibility for his many blunders by diverting attention from himself to these men. We refuse to allow this!

Very sincerely yours,
MARTHA COOPER LANG

To The Editor:

I would like to call to your attention a long-standing and grave injustice to thousands of needy families in California and to the taxpayers of the State, which can be rectified by supporting two bills presently before the California Legislature, SB87 and SB88.

As you know, the grants to families on welfare under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program are based on a formula which provides that 50 percent of the funds come from the Federal government and of the other 50 percent, 67 percent comes from the State and 33 percent from the locality. The amount given by State law is called the maximum participating base, and has not been changed since 1957 even though the cost of living has risen more than 25 percent since then. For example, a family of three, mother and two childdren, now receives $172 a month to live on, even though the State Department of Social Welfare budget schedules describe this as well below the amount necessary for decent living. It is interesting to note that all other categories of aid, i.e., blind aid, old age assistance, etc., have increased in accordance with the cost of living. This one hasn't.

As a result, more than a million children in this State are living far below the poverty line, not receiving food, clothing and housing they need. This creates a fertile field for juvenile delinquency, social unrest, health problems and all the other ills attendant on the poverty cycle in which they are enmeshed and which, in the long run, are so costly to the community.

These bills could benefit the taxpayer because at the present time supplemental help is often given to provide essentials for these families which come from the already overburdened county funds. If the law were changed, more money could come from the Federal government thus easing the burden on the County.

The Salinas Public Welfare Commission has recommended raising the maximum participating base as well as those in many other counties. The California County Supervisors Association took such action more than a year ago - and the County Welfare Directors Association has favored this for the past five years.

The two bills mentioned at the beginning of this letter, SB87 and SB88, sponsored by Senator Anthony Beilinson and Assemblyman Gordon Duffy would rectify this situation. I urge your readers to write these gentlemen as well as their Senators and Assemblymen. It is especially important that those of us here in the Valleys do this as in the past it has been from the agricultural areas in the State that the greatest opposition has come.

Yours sincerely,
CHARLOTTE KEMPNER

SPECIAL CVPOA MEETING TO HEAR SUPERVISOR BRANSON

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will be held at the request of Supervisor Willard Branson Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Community Center.

The meeting will discuss the hillside zoning ordinance that was recently voted down by the County Board of Supervisors and what might be done in the future to get a strict zoning measure for Carmel Valley.

The hearing will be open to the public.

What are Valley people doing about 'saving' their environment?

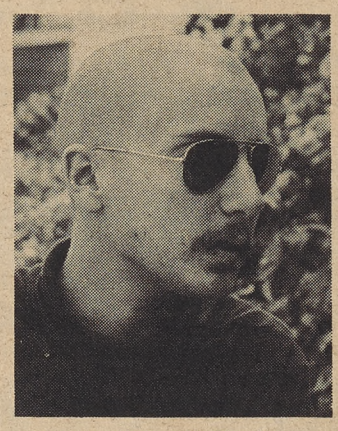
Today is Earth Day -- so proclaimed by the Environmental Action Committee in Washington, D.C. to focus public attention on the earth's beleagured environment.

The Outlook decided this was an appropriate time to find out just what affect this sudden national preoccupation with pollution and ecology has had on people in Carmel Valley. Has all the talk been just that -- talk, and nothing more? Or are people starting to do some things differently to make their lives more compatible with the environment that nourishes them?

So we asked several people: "What are you doing to help save the environment?" Here are their answers:

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Photos by George T.C. Smith

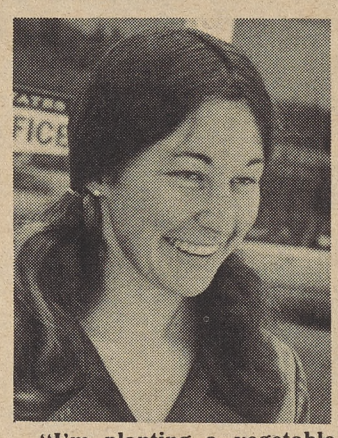


"We're living it. We have a whole program at Tassajara, where in everything we do we're conscious of the total ecology. For one thing, we're very careful about containers we use. We don't take anything we can't compost, so we don't take cans or plastics. We can compost cardboard. We've started a lot of new programs like that." -- ALAIN CROCKIN, Zen Monastery, Tassajara

"I have done everything I can to run my business (Stone, Post & Flower) along environmental lines. We're doing what we can to harmonize our building and landscaping physically and aesthetically with the surrounding environment. Also we're doing some research into ways of handling sewage in a more reasonable way, such as getting toilets that don't use so darn much water." -- ILBERT TUCKER, La Paloma

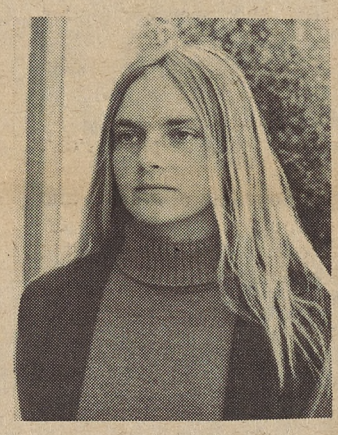
"I contributed to the film students are making on pollution in Monterey Bay. I gave some students some leather goods from my leather shop to use for their auction to raise money for SOS." -- ANDRE AGNEW, Hitchcock Canyon

"I don't think I've had anything to do with any of it. I signed some sort of ecology petitions going around the Village. I think they need stricter controls in the Village as far as the septic system is concerned." -- WALT MAUZEY, 85 Ford Road

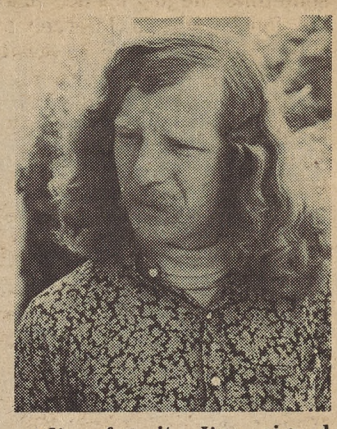


"I'm planting a vegetable garden with organic compost. I use biodegradable soap. Also I support organic food stores, and get meat and milk from an organic dairy. It's all available right here." -- JENNIFER LOVEJOY, River Road

"I sign petitions. I don't smoke. And I'm trying to impress our children about the importance of taking care of the environment." -- MRS. ANN BAKER, Upper Circle



"I ride my bike to school instead of using the car. I know one car doesn't make that much difference, but I feel if I ride my bike and people ask me why, then it makes them more aware of automobile pollution. If I have to go someplace by car, I try to get a ride with other people who are going that way anyway." -- LINDY DOUD, Laurel Drive



"I'm for it. I've signed petitions. There's really not much I can do except talk to people about ecology and get them interested." -- JOSEPH ORTMAN, Los Agrimensores

"I've never used DDT, that's one thing. And I've signed petitions against the pollution of Monterey Bay." -- MRS. BARBARA BELLECI, Paso Hondo

"I've been very interested, of course, but I don't know that I've done anything. I'm reading a lot about it." -- MRS. WARREN HIGBY, Paso Mediano

Some things YOU can do

Environment is a big word. What can one mere individual do about it?

Plenty. Such as:

1. Save all aluminum cans, pie plates, trays from TV dinners, etc. The Sierra Club will be making another area-wide collection of aluminum containers in June (many high school and college students did the door-to-door collecting for the earlier drive). The aluminum can re re-used. Aluminum cans are the ones without seams, and with rounded bottoms (many beer cans and some soft drink cans are aluminum.)

2. Buy soft drinks in returnable bottles. You'll have to hunt for these bottles at first, but there are several advantages. It's cheaper. It will cut down on the volume of garbage that has to be buried (broken glass doesn't do anything but remain broken glass) and kids love to get the refund money. And it makes sense. Why shouldn't a perfectly good bottle be used again?

3. Try using biodegradable soap, the kind that can be absorbed by the ground naturally instead of foaming on forever. Detergents, and now enzyme cleaners, are a major cause of water pollution and a major problem at sewage treatment plants across the nation. (See separate story on this page for how to use plain soap and get your clothes clean too!)

4. Get expert help before spraying oak trees or any other trees or plants in your garden. Many sprays doom not only oak moths, but their natural predators and scores of other insects -- everything from bees to ladybugs. By killing off all insects indiscriminately, you may inadvertantly eliminate hundreds of birds as well.

'Survival Week' programs for the entire area

Lectures and exhibits on pollution and other environmental problems are included in a broad "Survival Week" program at Monterey Peninsula College.

Although today, April 22, has been designated Earth Day throughout the nation, MPC students and faculty have expanded their environmental observance to a seven-day program.

Today and tonight, many classes at MPC will focus on environmental problems. These lectures will all be open to the public, and a schedule listing times and locations of specific classes will be available in the library patio.

Also set up in the library patio will be an exhibit of problems of wildlife conservation arranged by Mrs. Araby Colton of Carmel Valley.

Other exhibits are planned for librarires in Monterey, Pacific Grove, MPC and Carmel, featuring books on ecology and pollution and pamphlets on recycling certain products, such as aluminum.

During this week, MPC students have been urged to hitchhike, ride bycycles or band together in car pools to cut down on the number of cars moving on and off the campus.

CARS WITHOUT PASSENGERS

This effort is the outgrowth of a survey taken by members of the Environmental Action Committee last month, when they counted the number of cars entering the campus and how many occupants each car had. On one day they counted 4,076 cars between 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and 71 percent included only the driver.

Also this week, KMST-TV, Channel 46, is donating a half-hour time period from 3:30 to 4:00 p.m. to the Environmental Action Committee. Today's program will feature Fred Shuier, an instructor at Cabrillo College, and Dr. Donald Abbott of Hopkins Marine Station discussing pollution in Monterey Bay.

Tomorrow Dr. John Phillips of Hopkins will talk about DDT, and on Friday the guest epxert will be Dr. David Eppel, also from Hopkins. His topic will be "Death of the Oceans".

Part of the MPC effort is planned to survive "Survival Week." Several students have prepared a large organic garden bwtween the National Guard Armory and the volleyball courts where they plan to grow flowers, vegetables and fruit trees.

Today the garden will serve a special purpose. At noon a "pollution time capsule"will be buried there, containing the winners in the "Greatest Polluters of the Monterey Bay Area" contest being conducted on the MPC campus.

Co-ordinators of the week-long event are Jim Locke, a student teacher from San Jose State College, and Betsy Baer-McLeod, a student. Jane Hunt is program chairman.

WILDLIFE OF MONTEREY COUNTY ...

The California Badger

BY LESTER GOLDEN

The California badger is fairly well known in this area but because of its shyness and largely nocturnal habits, is rarely seen except by ranchers and rural residents.

This large, yellowish gray-colored member of the weasel family has the characteristic broad head, low round ears and beady eyes. The black face is divided by a strikingly white, half inch wide stripe that extends from the black nose-pad over the forehead and down the back of the neck to the top of the shoulders. The facial cheeks are white with a vertical black bar halfway between eyes and whitefronted ears.

Built long and low to the ground, the badger gives the impression of being very wide or depressed, although when running he stands up on his short bowed legs and carries his body surprisingly high. Long overhairs of the heavy coat of fur extend to the sides, giving him the appearance of being much wider than he really is.

One noticeable trait is his habit of raising his head to look directly at you and continuing to watch you with quick glances as he hurries for cover. Once behind a log, some brush or rocks or even just over a road bank, he will invariably return for one more inquisitive look before he leaves.

The badger is equipped with very long straight claws that enable him to dig quite rapidly in his pursuit of the gophers, groundsquirrels and other rodents that comprise the most of his diet.

Although seldom if ever weighing more than 20 lbs., he is a fierce fighter. Powerfully built, quick and armed with the strong claws, he is also protected by the heavy fur and tough, loose skin. With the exception of the mountain lion, few large predatory animals will touch him. He is capable of disemboweling a dog with those knife like front claws.

Because of his habit of digging large holes in the fields in his pursuit of gophers, squirrels and other prey and for his own den, the badger has earned the disfavor of ranchers and farmers in general. It is said that horses have sustained broken legs and sometimes thrown riders as a result of stepping in or breaking through into a badger hole.

His presence in a field is revealed by the large piles of dirt thrown out during his burrowing activities. He will sometimes lie just inside, facing the opening of his den and hiss loudly and growl fiercely at the approach of an intruder.

Badgers have suffered greatly from secondary poisoning wherever extensive poisoning campaigns have been launched for control or eradication of ground squirrels and other rodentia. Thus victims of their own habit of eating carrion and being highly susceptible to trapping, their numbers have been greatly reduced throughout the state and almost to the point of extinction in the flat agricultural areas, even though they are protected by state laws as furbearing animals.

While there is little demand for the fur, the badger is an intelligent, interesting and relatively harmless animal that undeniably makes his valuable contribution to the balance of nature by helping to safeguard against disastrous population explosions among the rodents.

It is senseless to risk elimination of any member of our wildlife community simply because of the timeworn theory that it might prove unfavorable to some phase of agriculture.

Carmel Valley to get chance to save news papers for salvage

Twenty to 25 tons of garbage are carted out of Carmel Valley every weekday.

It all takes a one-way trip to an area at Twin Bridges, past Marina, where it is dumped (at a charge of $1.50 a ton) and covered with dirt. Just layer upon layer of garbage and dirt, like a mammoth Dagwood sandwich slowly expanding across 500 acres owned by the County.

Nothing is burned, because that would create horrendous air pollution problems. Nothing is salvaged, because it's too much trouble.

Sometime within the next six months to a year, Valley residents will be given an opportunity to reclaim a portion of that monumental waste and contribute to the preservation of the total environment.

How? By bundling up newspapers and corrogated cardboard and taking them to a local collection center. From there, they paper will be taken to a pulp paper dealer, go through a re-cycling process and come out as fresh newsprint.

Trash-collecting companies in San Francisco are picking up tied bundles of newspapers right now on a trial basis, to see if enough people will bother to separate them from regular garbage to make it all financially worthwhile.

Elio Chiappe, secretary of the Carmel and Carmel Valley Disposal Service, explained his firm is willing to join this environmental effort on a modified basis.

The big difference between this area and San Francisco, of course, is volume. In the foreseeable future, the local garbage company could not afford to make door-to-door pick-ups of newspapers or smashed boxes.

SMALL VOLUME HERE

Chiappe said that bundled cardboard is bringing about $22 a ton right now, and he estimates it would take two weeks to collect that much cardboard in Carmel Valley.

"However, we're looking for a good place where we can get set up to receive paper in maybe six months or so," Chiappe explained.

"If people will save newspapers and boxes, and bring them to us, we'll collect it until we have enough to make a shipment."

In order to do this, the company will have to invest in a pit baler machine, which will cost about $20,000. Chiappe said that pulp paper dealers want the used newsprint in 1000 to 2000-pound bales.

In large metropolitan areas, where several tons of paper are collected a day, garbage companies are buying giant shredding machines, at a cost of $60,000 to $80,000 to prepare discarded paper for re-cycling. "That's too big an investment in a small community such as this," Chiappe said.

Chiappe is hopeful that individuals and possibly youth or civic groups will get behind the effort to salvage paper. The results from a consistent community effort would be impressive.

For every ton of reprocessed newsprint, the equivalent of 17 trees will be saved.

For every ton reclaimed, there will be one less ton to be buried north of Marina.

Within a year, residents of Carmel and Carmel Valley will have a chance to show just how important they think this is.

WARNING ISSUED ON DUMPING IN CARMEL RIVER

Carmel Valley residents were warned last week to keep a sharp eye out for anyone dumping anything into the Carmel River.

The warning came from County sanitarian Walter Wong after his office was told that a septic tank service truck was seen dumping sewage into the river on two separate occasions within the past month.

The truck was reported seen once at the end of Schulte Road and another time above the Farm Center. On both occasions, witnesses said, sewage taken from septic tanks was being emptied into the river.

Wong said all septic tank firms in Monterey County must be licensed by the County Health Department.

"If we catch someone dumping in an unauthorized area, we can suspend their permit to operate, or revoke it permanently," he said. Persons convicted in court of unauthorized dumping are also subject to a $500 fine or six months in jail, or both.

Wong said anyone seeing sewage, garbage or any other foreign material being dumped into the Carmel River should note the license number of the car or truck and notify the sheriff's department or the County Health Department immediately. It isn't necessary for the health department to catch the culprit in the act if the complaining witness will later testify to exactly what it was he saw.

The health department has revoked operating permits for septic tank firms in the past. Wong said "fly-by-night" firms, which go door-to-door and operate without County permits to begin with, are most often guilty of dumping in unauthorized locations.

Water company wants to filter out 'iron' from Valley well

Because there's too much iron in the water, the California-American Water Company hopes to install a series of three filtration tanks by a well it operates at the end of Schulte Road.

The water company will apply for a use permit to expand facilities at that location at a meeting of the County Planning Commission on April 29.

Wayne Millington, district engineer for the water company, said that high iron content has been a common problem with well water coming from the lower end of the Valley. He said that in the past the company has not made much use of its 137-foot-deep well at Schulte Road, but would like to start taking more water from it now if the quality can be improved.

In order to filter out the iron, Millington said the company will need three tanks 8 feet in diameter and 20 feet long. They will also need a small building to house special equipment.

Millington said that the company has been wanting to increase production from this well for some time, and that there is no special urgency because of this year's relatively light rainfall.

"We have the well there and we'd like to use it," he commented.

The Schulte Road well is the lowest, or most westerly, well the water company operates on the Carmel River. Millington said that private wells located below theirs show an even higher iron reading, but that water is used for agricultural purposes only.

Mattie Dudley leads campaign for 'Coffee House' in Carmel

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Mattie Dudley is not one to turn away from a serious problem with a "what can I do about it?" shrug.

The vivacious Carmel High School junior from Carmel Valley has decided that there is something she and her friends can do to change the current drug scene and benefit the majority of "straight" kids as well. Right now she's working hard to convince local officials, businessmen and parents that her idea will work.

Mattie would like to see a coffee house established in Carmel that would cater to high school students and the "street people" who presently congregate along Ocean Ave.

Its attractions would include shuffle board, chess, records, TV, food and soft drinks -- and one or more full-time counselors who would be available for anyone to talk to any day or evening until midnight.

Although it would be youth-oriented, adults would be welcome. In fact, Mattie hopes that many adults interested in young people would make it a habit to drop in, maybe for a cup of coffee, maybe for a lengthy conversation.

And what about drugs?

"This would operate on the honor system," Mattie says firmly. "There have been a lot of places like this that have opened up where this has worked well. The people who come in would simply know that no drugs are allowed. It would be a real honor code."

There are many reasons Mattie thinks a coffee house is needed. She points out that at present there is no place for high school students to hang out, to go after school or on a weekend where they can count on seeing friends and having an enjoyable, inexpensive time.

"All anyone ever says now is 'let's cruise town'. So okay, you cruise town for awhile. There's nothing going on. Kids want something to do, someplace to go. There isn't any."

Carmel businessmen she has talked to have been enthusiastic about the idea of a coffee house because they see it as one way to "get the hippies off the streets."

HELP FOR HIPPIES

Mattie sees other advantages for the street people.

"I think they really need help," she says. "They need someone,and they can't talk to their parents. With someplace to go, where they'd be accepted, they wouldn't have to feel like outcasts. And there'd be counselors for them to talk to, to help them."

Mattie and another student, Bob Faul, have contacted the Carmel Businessman's Association and the Carmel City Council about the project. Their plan was received cordially, but so far no one has suggested a suitable location for such a coffee house, and no funds have been raised for its operation.

The Drug Abuse Committee appointed by the Carmel School Board is also interested in the idea. Mattie, who is an alternate student member on the school board, is a member of the committee and has shared in its study of the local drug scene.

Mattie and Bob have checked into other coffee house operations, and estimate they would need about $2500 in capital to get started, not including the cost of a building.

"Several businessmen have been really positive about the whole thing and have said they'd back us morally and financially," she explained. "and some other people on our committee have checked around and found that several good people would volunteer to be counselors. So what we really need now is a place."

She expects to speak before more groups in the next few weeks, with the hope that somewhere along the line a suitable location will turn up.

Several other students at the high school have signed up to help with the project in any way possible. Among them are Jim Heisinger, Denis Lonefellow, Ce-Ce Rogers, Debbie Nystrom, Cindy Leslie, Cathy Toldi, Bill Forbes, April Master, Josh Scheid, Marci Lewis, Noel Jensen, Chris Lundblad, Brink Harrison, Paul Esenhiser, Doug McCall, Vicky Buckley, Dana Reade and Linder Laiolo.

"All we want to do is to get something constructive going here," says Mattie enthusiastically. "We know this can work, because it has worked other places. We just need some help to get going."

SORORITY CELEBRATES FOUNDERS DAY

The Monterey Chapter of Pi Beta Phi are celebrating their Founders Day on Saturday at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel. All local residents associated with the sorority are cordially invited to make their reservations with Mrs. William Fisher, 624-0305 and attend. Plans will be under discussion for the Chapter's May 26 benefit, a Domino Tournament to be held at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. All proceeds will be used to benefit the Drug Information and Youth Crisis Center of Monterey County.

MATTIE DUDLEY is leading a campaign to get a coffee house established in Carmel. She thinks this would help cut down on the local drug scene by giving teens and Carmel "street people" a place to go after school or in the evening. The proposed coffee house would have one or more counselors available for anyone to talk to, and a "no drugs" rule would be enforced by an honor system.

CYPRESS SWIM CLUB COMPETES AT LARGEST 'SYNCH' MEET

The 1970 outdoor season for competitive synchronized swimming got underway last weekend with the largest entry ever held in the history of the sport. Thirteen members of the Cypress Swim Club competed against 299 members of 13 other Northern California clubs at the Pacific AAU Scorers' Association Invitational Age Group Stunt meet.

Gerri Brandly, 11, of Pebble Beach, paced her teammates by winning the fourth place ribbon in the 11-12 Open division. Kathryn Blevens of the Valley took tenth place in the 11-12 Intermediate group; Stacy Larsen from Pacific Grove placed 13th in the 10-and-under Novice; and Debbie Jameson, also of Carmel Valley, placed 15th in the 11-12 Novice.

This four-girl team will be entered in the 1970 PAAU Novice championships to be held at the San Marin Club pool May 2 and 3, and is highly favored to win the team title at that meet at Novato.

Grouped according to age, Cypress placements were as follows: 10-and-under: Stacy Larsen(PG) 13; Judy Wright (CV) 47; 11-12: Gerry Brandly (PB) 4; Kathryn Blevens (CV) 10; Debbie Jameson (CV) 15; Cathy Rahe (C) 27; Suzanne Calley (PG) 33; Julie Lipman (C) 44; 13-14: Kathy Clark (PG) 41; Shari Mullen (PG) 43; Vickie Shaw (PG) 49; 15-17: Teri Rahe (C) 17; Helen Julanicki (PG) 19.

THE PHONE BOOTH

Whenever we talk, we vibrate the air between us and the person we're talking to. The mouthpiece of your telephone changes the air vibrations into electrical impulses which travel to the other telephone receiver. There the electrical waves are converted back into sound waves which are uniquely your own. Unseen, however, in this process are the billions of miles of wire and millions of switches which could be used to direct your vibrations to the single phone, of the more than 200 million telephones in the world, that you selected. With millions of calls a day, it takes a lot of good switching to make sure you get good vibrations.

Be sure and join us on radio for the San Francisco Giants' exciting baseball games. Pacific Telephone is one of the sponsors who'll be keeping you up on the action throughout the season. Sportscasters Russ Hodges, Lon Simmons and Bill Thompson will be giving you handy tips on the use of your telephone.

BY MRS. B.C. FORRESTER

When you visit in New England it is very probable you will have many occasions to enjoy fish chowders, clam chowders and the many combination chowders of vegetable and fish chowders. The name "chowder" has been so closely related to New England by the American people, that it is with surprise we learn it had its origin on the coast of Brittany in Northern France. In the little fishing villages of Brittany it has been the custom for the returning fisherman to throw some of his catch into a community pot, or "chaudiere" as the French call it. Together with biscuits added. This mixture of fish and biscuit was found so good that the fishermen carried it's fame to Newfoundland, and from there to the East Coast of the United States.

The name of the pot was called "chowder" in the western world, and soon the contents of the pot assumed the name. So today the word refers to the delicious fish mixture, no matter what type of pan, pot or kettle it may have been cooked in. Here is the Canadian recipe for fish chowder:

1 lb. whitefish or desalted cod
2 large minced onions
1 quart milk
2 cube salt pork diced
2 cups diced raw potato
salt and pepper to taste

Fry pork and remove from pan, then fry onion. Cut fish in small pieces, then combine all ingredients. Simmer until potato is cooked. Serves 4 to 6.

The German word "schrumpfen" gave to English the word "shrivel" and it was a natural transition that a shrivelled, little person would be termed a "schrump" or "shrimp" in a derogatory sense. Later it developed that the tiny shellfish would be a "shrimp," though not in derision.

Another shellfish, which we today call a clam, was in former days known as a clamp, referring of course to the two shells which clamped together in danger, much as a pair of pincers clamp together. "Oyster" is a direct descendant of the Greek word "ostrakon" or hard shell, which of course it is.

Clam Chowder: This of course is one of the favorite shell fish chowders, and popular from coast to coast.

one half pint chopped clams
2 diced potatoes
2-inch cube salt pork, diced or 2 cans clams with juice
salt and pepper
1 quart milk
2 chopped onions

Saute pork cubes and remove, then saute the onions. Boil the potatoes until almost tender, then drain. Add all the ingredients and simmer until quite hot but do not boil. Serve with corn bread or croutons. Serves 4.

Charleston Shrimp Saute:

2 lbs. raw shrimp (shelled and deveined)
3 scallions (sliced)
1½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. butter (or margarine)
⅛ tsp. pepper

Place butter in skillet, saute shrimp with 3 sliced scallions, salt and pepper, tossing to cook all sides, for 3 to 5 minutes.

Add 2 tbsp. sherry, or a little lemon juice, with a little snipped parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Oyster Stew

2 doz. shucked raw oysters, with liquid
¼ cup butter (or margarine)
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. celery salt
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. paprika
1 quart milk

Carefully pick over oysters to remove bits of shell. In deep skillet or kettle, heat butter until sizzling. Add oysters and liquid, Worcestershire, celery salt, salt and pepper and paprika. Heat until edges of oysters curl slightly. Add milk. Heat quickly but do not boil. Serve in bowls. Makes 4 servings. Pass oyster crackers, or soda crackers if desired.

The Chinese have a recipe for stuffed clams which is delicious:

2½ lbs. raw clams in the shell
2 minced green onions
2 pieces fresh ginger crushed to give juice, or 1 tsp. powdered ginger
½ tsp. salt
½ cup clam broth or soup stock
½ lb. ground pork or beef
2 water chestnuts or ½ green pepper, minced
3 tbsp. sherry
2 tsp. soy sauce
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbsp. butter or margarine

Pour boiling water over clams. Then drain and remove from shells with sharp knife. (Keep two halves of each shell attached, if possible.)

When clams are cool, mince them fine and mix with minced meat, onions, and water chestnuts or green peppers; add ginger, wine, soy sauce, salt and sugar. Stuff mixture into the empty clam shells. (Use greased scallop shells, custard cups or casseroles if you want larger servings.) Place shells in a large baking dish, pour stock over them and dot with butter or margarine.

Bake in moderately hot oven (375) for about 25 minutes, or until mixture inside the shells bubbles. Serves 6 to 8.

PLAN ADDITIONS AT ALL SAINTS EPISCOPAL SCHOOL

All Saints' Episcopal Day School in Carmel Valley is planning to add a large multipurpose room, a small chapel and an office to the main school building.

The Rev. Peter Farmer, headmaster of the school, said he hopes construction of the new facilities will be completed by September. He said the additional space will be needed then because the school plans to add an eighth grade class, increasing its enrollment from 104 students to approximately 120.

The multipurpose room, which will be used for visual aids, folk dancing and crafts, and the chapel will be added at the east end of the existing school building, facing Carmel Valley road. The new office will be built at the west end of the school, expanding the cramped space now shared by Rev. Farmer and the school secretary.

Rev. Farmer explained that the small chapel, or oratory, will be designed for private meditation or use by small groups. When a church service is to include all the students, the school will be able to use the sanctuary of the Lutheran Church across the road, or the nearby First Baptist Church. Both churches have allowed the day school to use their premises in the past.

Drawings for the new rooms have just been completed by the architects, Wallace Holm & Assoc. of Monterey. The school expects to put the project out for bids right away.

The school will apply for a use permit for the construction at the April 29 meeting of the County Planning Commission. The rooms to be added were all included in the use permit approved when the school was first built.

DOBERMAN PINSCHER SHOW TO BE HELD HERE ON MAY 23

The 6th annual Specialty Show and Obedience Trial sponsored by the Cabrillo Doberman Pinscher Club of Carmel Valley will be held at the Carmel Valley Inn on Saturday, May 23.

Premium lists and entry forms have been sent to exhibitors, and expectations are that this year's show will be one of the biggest ever.

E.A. Kamerer is show secretary.

Permission has been granted by the American Kennel Club for the holding of this event under American Kennel Club rules and regulations.

Judges will be Mrs. Bob Adamson of Roslyn Heights, L.I., N.Y. in all breed classes, and Scott K. Roberts of Carpinteria, in all obedience classes.

RABIES VACCINATION CLINIC IN VALLEY ON MAY 1

The Monterey County Health Department will sponsor a reduced-fee rabies vaccination clinic at the Carmel Valley Fire Station on Friday, May 1, from noon until 2:30 p.m.

Dogs will be given rabies vaccination shots for $2, and owners may also purchase dog licenses for $2 at the same time. The cost of licenses goes up to $3 after May 31.

Vaccination shots are required every two years for all dogs over four months of age. A dog must be vaccinated before it can be given a license.

Similar clinics will be held on Tuesday, April 28, from noon until 2 p.m. at Civic Center, Junipero and Fourth, in Carmel, and from 4 to 6 p.m. at the fire station at Dela Vina and Montecito in Monterey.

Seated in the queen's car beside her father was 3½-year-old Stacy Wester, who is already something of a racetrack pro. Stacy was properly attired in a black-and-white checked sweater emblazoned with racing emblems knitted by her mother, ballet teacher Pat Wester.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

AT CARMEL VALLEY MANOR

By SUSAN STONE

ARTIST EDITH TRUESDELL whose abstract desert landscapes have won her widespread recognition will present a slide talk Saturday evening on "Great Paintings to Enjoy". A sherry party will be held before dinner to introduce Artist Helen Bruton whose works are now on display in the Manor Gallery.

Mrs. Truesdell still teaches classes and exhibits with success. She has turned from oils to acrylics and her previous slide talks have filled the auditorium. Listed in "Who's Who in Art", Mrs. Truesdell has won many awards for her desert paintings. Before coming to the Manor, she taught adult classes in Mill Valley and, previous to that, taught in private schools in Colorado and California.

Eleven Manor residents accepted Sheriff Jack Davenport's invitation to visit his office and the prison farm in Salinas, a trip which included lunch. The report was that the food, which is the same served the prison inmates, is very good.

xxx

It is a policy of the Manor to have various invited speakers at Sunday Vespers and Father David Hill of All Saints Church in Carmel will speak at the Meeting House April 26.

PUBLIC STABLE IS APPROVED IN LOWER CARMEL VALLEY

A use permit for a public stable was approved for Jerry Taylor by the county zoning administrator.

The stable is located in Rancho Canada de la Segunda, fronting on and southerly of Carmel Valley Road. While it is in a district zoned for an unlimited number of animals on the property provided that the property owner owns all the animals, Taylor requested permission to house or board horses belonging to other people.

The Lower Carmel Valley Advisory Committee recommended approval for a 2-year period.

Robert Gilcrest, a realtor representing Taylor, read a letter circulated by Mrs. Taylor which stated that 5 property owners in the area have no objection to the application. He also stated that the Taylors are requesting a public stable for a maximum of 12 horses.

The use permit was granted subject to the following conditions:

1. That the operation be limited to the boarding, stabling, and training of horses only.
2. That there be no sales of horses other than the applicant's.
3. That there be no rental of animals.
4. That the public stable be limited to a maximum of twelve horses.
5. That there be no riding events, shows, or similar operations.
6 That an adequate parking area for horse trailers be established south of the stables.
7. That the location, type, and wattage of all exterior lights on the property be approved by the Director of Planning.
8. That any lights in the riding area be turned off by 10:00 p.m.
9. Grant to County by deed, area within Official Plan Line on Carmel Valley Road.
10. Construct standard driveway connection to Carmel Valley Road prior to use.
11. If existing well is to be used for any purpose, then it must be chlorinated and sealed as required by the Health Department.
12. If the well is to be abandoned, then it is to be properly abandoned as required by State Codes.
13. That this permit expire on April 9, 1980.

BOB WOOD REPORTS. . .

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD,
ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

Although the Legislature has been in session since January 4, I didn't really get my official baptism under fire until the other day on the Assembly floor. Up until last Wednesday, I had introduced several resolutions along with a few minor bills, and have co-authored several name bills, actually drawn up by other Assemblymen, but I had never really spoken on the floor in my own behalf on any bill of any real importance; in other words a bill of my own that could create some discussion and controversy on the floor. However, last Wednesday it was my turn to present my bill AB 107 requiring that re-use or reclamation of water be one of the uses to be considered by the State Water Quality Resources Board in acting upon applications to appropriate water.

After receiving permission from the Speaker to proceed, I presented my reasons why I thought there was a need for such a bill. I concluded my testimony and sat down awaiting the verdict of my fellow Legislators.

There is a large board in the front of the Assembly wall and each Assemblyman's name is listed with a green and red light behind each name. Each desk is equipped with a small switch. If a Legislator approves of a measure he turns the switch to the yes side and a green light shows up by his name. If he desires a no vote, or disapproves of the measure, he flips the no switch and a red light appears on the huge board behind his name. I didn't anticipate much trouble and hoped for a majority of green lights which would show approval, I only needed 41 green or yes votes. However, upon concluding my testimony, and when the Speaker called for the vote, almost 60 percent of the lights turned up red, and I was flabbergasted. I hadn't anticipated this much trouble. One fellow Legislator said later that I turned red from the back of my neck over the top of my head and down to a point below my Adam's apple. I momentarily lost my composure and before I could regain it Assemblyman Jack Fenton, a Democrat from Whittier who sits in the desk in front of me had leaned backward and flicked my own switch from a yes vote (or green light) to a no vote, or a red light, and he did this without me noticing what he was up to. However, just before the vote closed every man on the floor Republican and Democrat alike, had switched to a yes or a green vote for approval of my bill. And when I looked up at the Board the only red light showing in opposition to the bill was a red light opposite my own name, and here I was, the author of the bill. I was greatly relieved to receive this unanimous support and then suddenly it dawned upon me that there was really no opposition all along, it was really just the Legislature's way of breaking in a Freshman Assemblyman. As I happily left the Assembly floor that day a senior Legislator, and a member of the Assembly for over 15 years, came along side and said, "Bob, you have now been officially baptised, you are now one of us. However, don't expect this unanimous approval on all your future bills. (P.S. I'm sure I won't!)

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

CARMEL VALLEY Little League opened its 1970 Season Saturday before the largest gathering of spectators to ever assemble at the field on the Carmel River ... a field which must hold the undisputed distinction for the most natural beauty surrounding any Little League ball park in the U.S.

Pennants representative of each team snapped in the breeze, streamers festooned bleachers, snack bar, and the announcers booth as the Tularcitos band led by John Farr played to an appreciative crowd.

Jim Clark, league vice president, had planned the opening ceremonies which were MC'd by Steve Thigpen, treasurer. Among the credits given during the 13th annual opening were to the Carmel Sand and Gravel Company who had supplied the gravel around the stands ... Mrs. George Palmer whose recent Bucks for Bats Fund Drive totaled $769.25 ... the cooperative parents of the 132 boys who are playing this year on Valley teams ... Mrs. James Clark who was responsible for the attractive pennants and field decorations ... George Groves who has returned as Player Agent for the NINTH season ... and Valley Hills Nursery who supplied the trees which have been planted about the field.

Rev. James Brock of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church gave the invocation.

Thigpen called the roll of the members who made up the original board of the C.V. Little League. They included Ray Clark, Lou Allaire, Ed Haber, Robin Sprague, Doc Mason, Jack Cartwright, Boyd Danielson, Don Gibson, Walley Marvin, Gabe Pastori, Dick Jenning, Eddie Vanetti, Herb Brownell, Tom Thurston and Art Bennett. Many have moved, some have died, but other members who were present for the roll call included Rev. Don Johnson, Dr. Boyd Huff, Dr. Ed Marcucci, Pete Danielson, Ed Mayfield, Charles Gansel and Ruth Mayfield (who manned the first snack booth from the back of her station wagon.

Ribbons were presented to the four boys who worked as a team on the Bucks for Bats Drive collecting a total of $92.00. Accepting the surprise award were Laurent Longfellow, Rogue Hattan, Shane Hattan and Garth Hattan.

The teams marched onto the field with their coaches and sponsors and were introduced to the stands. Representing the Carmel Valley Lions Club with the Lions team was Cmdr. (ret.) William Stowers; Charles Gansel represented the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department who have sponsored the Vonunteers since 1958; Rev. Brock and Rev. Johnson were with the Tigers sponsored by St. Dunstan's and the C.V. Community Chapel; the Cubs are sponsored by Porter-Marquard; the Hornets by the Village Inn; the Pirates by Wills Fargo; Indians by C.V. Kiwanis Club and the Giants by the Mid+Valley Merchants made up of Tom Steiny's Chevron, Adina's, Steinmetz, The Pool Man, Kearns, Hitchcock's, Crocker Bank and Tierra Grande Cleaners. Preceding the call to colors led by the Boy Scouts, the boys read in unison the Little League Pledge.

Ed Mayfield, first president of the Valley League, threw out the first ball signaling play between the Volunteers and the Lions ... the later won 9-6. The second game of the double header waas a shutout by the Tigers who won 8-0 over the Giants. A double play in that second game was credited to Jim Copsey of the Tigers. It was a memorable afternoon with some spectacular spectator catches of fly balls by Andy Nottenkamper and Dr. Gerry Petkus.... dogs, ALL breeds making frequent appearances on the field ... a land office business at the Snack Bar where Dot Palmer and her crew sold out of the 18 dozen buns on hand, the ice cream and various other supplies ... and a mysterious enthusiastic grapevine which piped happenings at the field to the village with surprising rapidity!

Teams will play nearly every night and Saturdays. Evening games begin at 5:30 and Saturday's games at 9:00 a.m. Everyone is cordially invited. There is no admission charge.

All teams are presently filled and boys who made late registrations have been placed on waiting lists and will be assigned to teams when there are vacancies in the order of their sign-ups.

PLAY BALL - Ed Mayfield, first president of the Carmel Valley Little League, throws out the traditional first ball signalling the beginning of play for the Valley's 13th season. Jeff Canadas is the batter for the Lions with Rudi Avila catcher for the Volunteers. Rear right is umpire Kirk Gayman.

THE PITCH is good from Larry Ocampo to Lion Jeff Canadas in a game that ended 9-6 for the Volunteers. Note freshly painted billboards of some of the many businesses who support the League.

"REX WHITE ... THIS IS YOUR LIFE!" ... and just like the popular television program, what followed for the guest of honor was a series of surprises, some funny and some with a touch of sadness, reviewed the life as facts and pictures of one of Carmel Valley's best known citizens who found himself the guest of honor at a surprise birthday party. The first fields of wild flowers and a Sunday steak barbecue at prince's Camp planned by Rex have always been synonymous with Spring's arrival. The popular barbecues are still held, but there have had to be some changes in recent years and now they are on an invitational only basis. Lucille and Harold Steinmetz who planned Rex's private celebration had provided a cushioned throne for their honored guest who was crowned with a new straw hat, which matched the cake designed and baked by Bonnie Anderson of the Cachagua.

Pictures of Rex as an appealing infant, a mischievous youngster, and a dashing young man traced his life line right to the present day as "Baron of Princes Camp". One of the biggest surprises were special guests from Santa Barbara, Helen and Ray (Tiny) Neill. A handsome sweater was presented by the many admirers who shared in the surprise. They included Jean and John Franick, Cherri and Bruce Jordon, Thelma and Tony Vierra, Clara and George Hull, Alice and Dick Keller, Jerry and Basco Bryant, Cookie and Pancho Meadows, Rosalie and Carl Pike, Sara and Vincent Ventura, Barbara and Emil Pozzi, Jerry and Bud Hogan, Grace and John De Conte, Margaret and Manuel Rodriguez, Fred Beluel, Virginia and Joe Bosse, Vee and Ed Perlto, Yoke and Ale Mangai, Mr. and Mrs. S. Beusan, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Lingenfelter, Evy and Mase Blinkenburg, Mike Rodriguez, Maxine and John Coprezina, Bonnie and Chuck Anderson, Cliff and Phyllis Silva, Leona and Bob Jones, Jackie and Dan Castro, Elnora and Bill Morris, Dot and George Boughner, Olive and Lloyd Kelly, Gill St. Clair, Zelpha and Rocky Kunes, Kitty and Bob Moore, Alice and Stan Davis, Marvin Tierney, Jaye and Russ Mock, Kathy, Jack, and Jason Calhoun, Vivina Caudill, and Donnie and John Lane.

"A CABANA PARTY", celebrating the completion of a five-year project was the reason for a party at the Aliso Road home of Ora and Lloyd Todd who invited friends to enjoy the Valley's recent rash of "shirt sleeve weather" and christen their new patio. Cocktails and a steak barbecue were enjoyed by the guests who competed in horseshoes and darts. Attending were Messrs. and Mmes. William Penpraze, Peter Glod, Jack Black, Tom Bordonaro, William Stowers, Jerry Carpenter, Leroy Dufur, Gary Kitt, Richard McKenzie, Dick Gayman and Charles Gansel.

MEXICAN DAY of the Monterey Bicentennial received a nice tribute from the hostesses for the April benefit bridge and canasta party sponsored by the Guild of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel. Co-hostesses, Mrs. Shepard Peterson and Mrs. Richard King, combined Mexican sea shells and flowers for a colorful and interesting decor. Table prizes and awards were jewelry made from the shells by Mrs. Peterson. Mrs. King made the fudge cake served during the dessert hour. Bridge winners for the afternoon were high in bridge to Margie Monroe, second to Ruth Wade. Bridge table prizes were won by Ruth Stauffer, Dorothy Ewing, Barbara Robbins, Irma Bolgard and Shirley Mills.

Jenny Clark won the first in canasta, Olga Darch, second, and table prizes were presented to Jane Korver, Martha Sturgiss, Beverly Sinclair, Hazel Carp and Kathryn Walker.

Visitors and newcomers are always welcome to attend the monthly party which will be held the third Wednesday of May at the Fellowship Hall with Mrs. Clifford Bolgard and Dorothy Chappell as co-hostesses. Play begins at 12:30.

xxx

A BRIDGE PLAYER missed at the Guild party last week was Mary Vosnik who had entered the hospital for surgery. A speedy recovery to her and to two other hospitalized Valleyites, Norman Bundgard, Lt. Col. (ret..) I.J. Doudna and Clyde Hitchcock.

CUB SCOUTS of Pack 76 presented the "greatest show on earth," at the pack meeting last week culminating the March theme of Circus Month. Lee Mink served as Ringmaster for the evening in the absence of Don Draper, Cubmaster of the Valley boys. Costumes of animals and characters one would expect to find performing under the Big Top were worn by each of the boys.

Den 3 led off the evening's activities with the opening ceremony, a song and a circus parade led by a giraffe.

A sideshow complete with bearded lady, siamese twins, snake charmer and clowns was presented by Den 2.

Den 4 exhibited paper mache animals made and painted by the boys, while Den 4 organized the closing.

Recipients of awards included:

Den 1 : Steve Allard, 2 silver arrow points; Jeff Hogans, 1 gold arrow point; Jeff Mink, 1 silver arrow point.

Den 3: Bear Badges were presented to Troy Davis and Jess Taylor; Awarded silver arrows were Rogan and Shane Hattan.

Den 4: Barry Rudolf had completed achievements for his Bob Cat pin.

MR. AND MRS. ROGER SHERMAN and Bill Conlan hosted a family night at the Sherman home on Paso Hondo for parents and their sons who will be playing on the Tigers, a Major team of Carmel Valley Little League. A large Tiger mascot centered the refreshment table where adults gathered to get acquainted while the boys were issued their uniforms. It is a pre-season tradition for Roger and Bill, co-managers of the team, to instill team spirit and support for their boys from the entire family.

THE CARMEL VALLEY WOMEN'S CLUB will meet May 6 at 12:30 for tea at the Community Center. Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Kenneth Van Hagen and Mrs. Ray Halley. Program chairman, Mrs. Adolph Friedenthal has invited Captain Ralph Arndt to present the Lyceum Story in a talk illustrated with films.

The Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula is a lay association of men and women who select the most promising and gifted students from all Peninsula schools (public, private and parochial) and offer a series of seminars on choices in career. They have sponsored a three-week summer music day camp at Asilomar in Pacific Grove for several years to provide greater opportunities for advanced instrumental instruction and playing to our local talented music students.

Over 1500 selected students have participated since 1960 from Kindergarten through grade 14. Over 100 artists, architects, doctors,engineers, scientists, mathematicians, lawyers, linguists, and specialists in other fields have donated their services in a broad spectrum of subjects: Aerodynamics, Astronomy, Atomic Structure, Biology, Chemistry, Economics, Electronic Computers, Elementary Particles, Expository Writing, Junior Great Books, Languages, Law, Mathematics, Medicine, Metallurgy, Music, Nuclear Reactors, Oceanography, Philsophy, Radioactivity and Solid State Physics. Club members are urged to attend this interesting and informative program which will be preceded by a business meeting and election of officers for the coming year.

LT. COL. AND MRS. BILL McNULTY stopped in the Valley recently to visit their former home and the many friends left behind when they were ordered several years ago to a post in the east. Since then they have seen a good part of the United States and recently returned from duty in Europe. Lorraine devoted a great deal of volunteer time to the Red Cross at their various posts and added many rare and beautiful fans to the collection which many Valleyites were privileged to see when they were exhibited during a Peninsula benefit. The McNulty's and their five children have been guests of Lorraine's parents, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Montgomery McKay, who still reside in the Bay area. The McKays visited frequently and always supported community activities when their family lived in the Valley. They preceded the McNultys to Los Angeles where their grandchildren, Christy, Colin, Cam, Jon and Stuie have an all day date promised with them at Disneyland. Bill is to report to Washington in two weeks and plans to return to the Valley following retirement.

AN "OLD OAK LEAF CLUSTER" to the Carmel Valley St. Bernard Farm and the appealing boost for Bucks for Bats which appeared on their fence. Youngsters and olders who always inspect the fence for their latest attractive display were not surprised in the least to see the promotion for the Carmel Valley Little League. Also a "cactus spine" to the individuals who stole their American flag which was being flown as a token of faith in the astronauts safe return ..... incredible.

THE CARMEL VALLEY LIONETTES have always welcomed Springtime with a party which was the purpose of International Night held last Saturday at the Community Center. Mrs. Phil Wright and Mrs. Gary Kitt, co-hostesses planned a menu of dishes from all over the globe. Included were Oriental hors 'd oeuvres, Turkish curry, German Sweet and Sour Cabbage, Italian egg plant and stuffed Rigatoni, Armenian cabbage rolls, Mexican enchiladas and American salad and dessert.

Colorful travel posters decorated the center and place mats and favors were of an International theme. The two hostesses assisted by their husbands organized bingo and numerous games following the dinner. Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. Cal Carpenter of Encino, guests of their son and his wife, Doctor and Mrs. Gerald Carpenter; Mrs. Vivian Bolser of Salinas, guest of her son Bill Stowers and his wife, Ruth; Frances and Bill Schumaker of Nice, Calif., guests of Doris and Gary Kitt; and Sonja and Dave Davis of the Valley, guests of Rae and Jack Black.

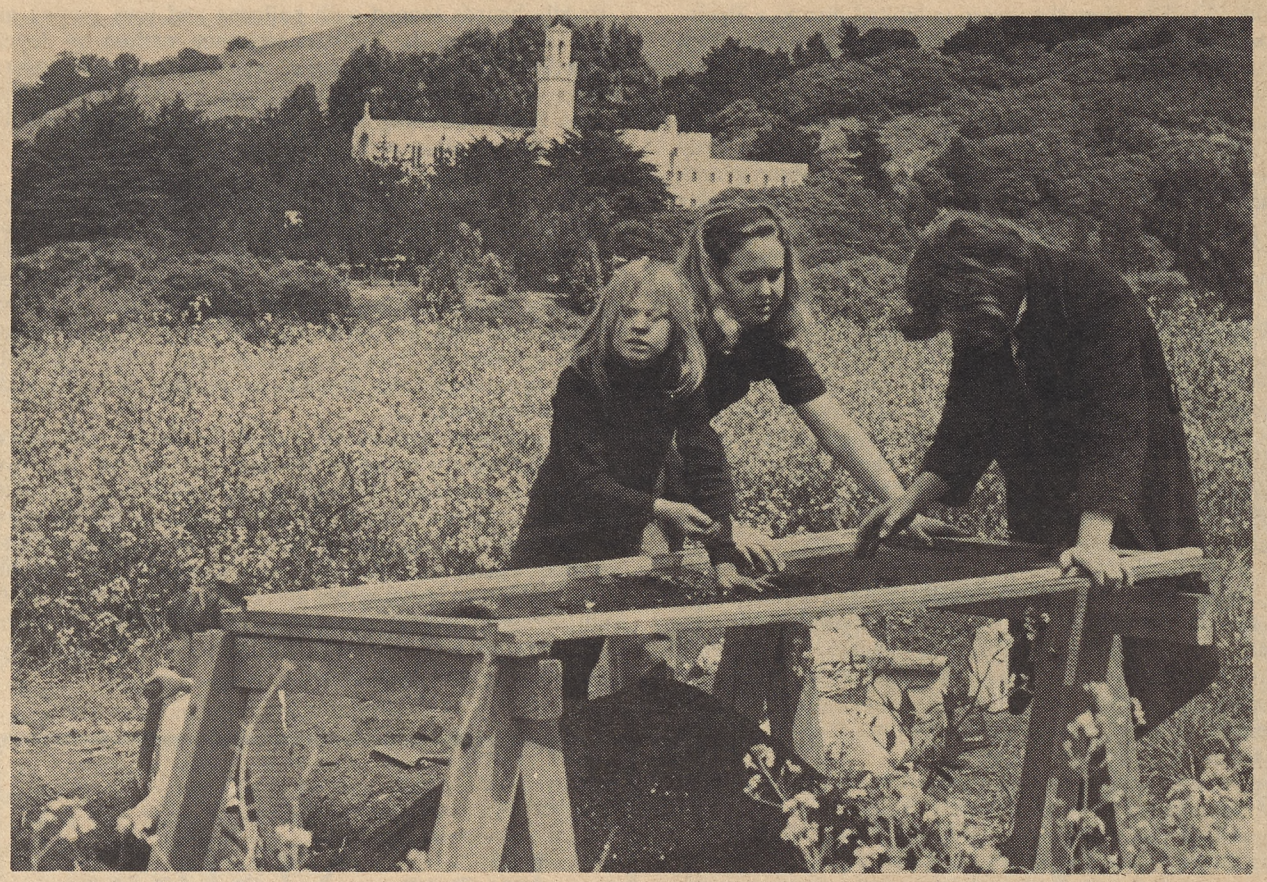
River School students dig deep into ancient California history



FLEDGLING ARCHEOLOGISTS Peggy Stafford and Dee Anne Keyston get a helping hand from Mrs. Robert Wahl as they sift dirt from an ancient Indian dig near the Carmelite Monastery. The property is owned by Tom Hudson.

WHAT WILL WE FIND HERE? wonder Dee Anne Keyston, Lynne Fenton and Gail Uyeda as they survey an excavation for any clues to the history of Ixchenta, the Indian village once located across from San Jose Beach.

SHOVELING OUT A DEEP TRENCH, David Carpenter and Mark Dodd gingerly toss dirt into a sifting box. Then, with the box full, the boys tip it back and forth see-saw fashion to sift out the dirt and see what, if anything, is left behind on the screen.

Fourth and fifth graders at Carmel River School have been digging into California history recently with more than usual enthusiasm.

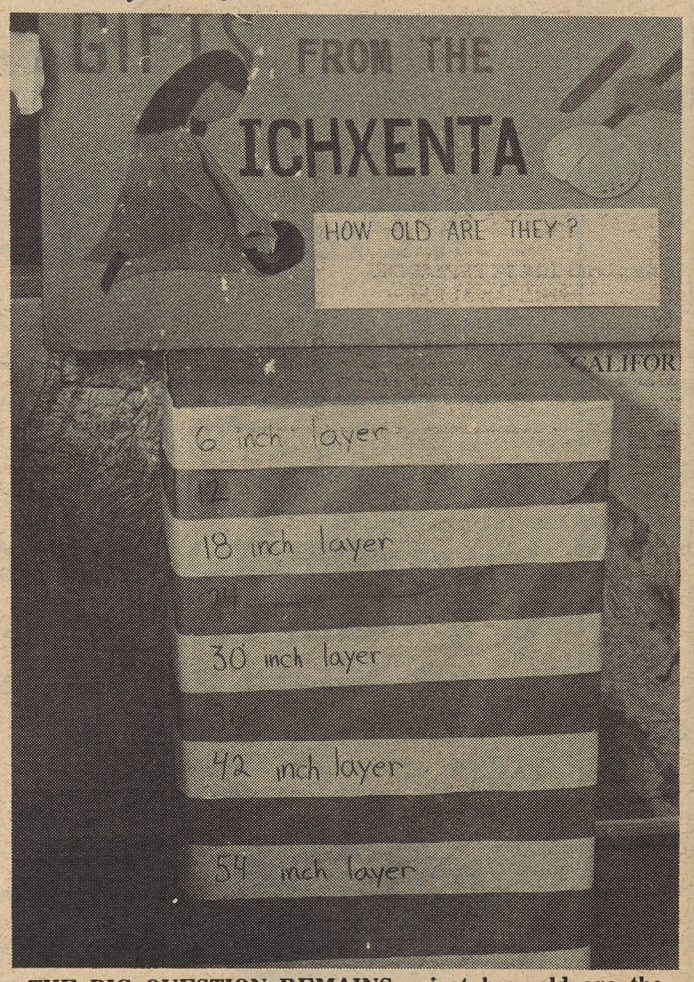
Their classroom has been a grassy hillside on property owned by Tom Hudson near the Carmelite Monastery. Instead of pencils and paper, they have worked with shovels, sifting screens and their own eager, probing fingers.

Shovelful by shovelful, they have uncovered something of the history of Ixchenta, an Indian village from which many of the Mission Indians came. Very little is known about the Ixchenta and how long ago it was first settled. So each "clue" discovered by a young archeologist has been historically significant: a partial burial, projectile points, two partial mortars, shells used as grinding tools, a bone needle, and hundreds of bone fragments from sea otter, seals, grizzly bear and deer.

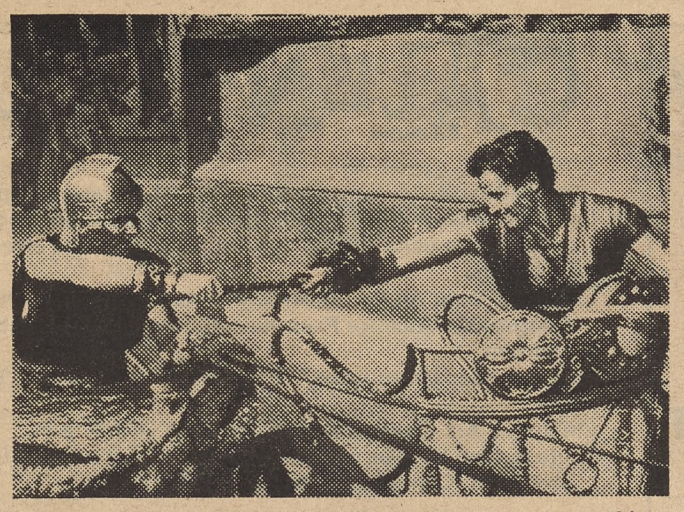
The project was directed by archeologist Don Howard and John Rick, an archeology student from U.C. Santa Cruz. Helping students tie in their field work with further classroom study have been Mrs. Arlene Levy, Mrs. Sharron Miller and Karen Ross, fifth grade teachers; and Mrs. Anna Kohner, Naomi Reddert and Robert Douglas, fourth grade teachers.

The pictures on these pages show some of the 162 students who participated in the dig.

DOWN DEEP AND GOING DEEPER is Beth Wahl. Girls pitched in to work alongside boys, and nobody minded getting a bit dirty in the process.



THE BIG QUESTION REMAINS: just how old are the traces of Ixchenta? River School is now trying to raise $160 to pay for a complicated analysis called Radiocarbon Age Determination (or Carbon-14 dating) as its contribution to the California Bi-Centennial Year program. Only one Carbon-14 dating has ever been done in Monterey County. That was 10 years ago at Willow Creek.



CHARLTON HESTON, as Ben-Hur, tries to wrest a whip away from Mesalla (Stephen Boyd) when the latter strikes out at him during the spectacular chariot race of "Ben-Hur". The world's most honored motion picture, winner of 11 Academy Awards, is now presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in the added splendor of wide screen and full stereophonic sound. The William Wyler presentation was filmed in Italy and other foreign locales. Now playing at the Steinbeck Theatre.

IN "ANY WEDNESDAY," now halfway through its run at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant, Ellen (Brit Lind) has a thing about balloons as part of a generally kooky personality. Cass (Rod Allison) presents her with a few in the process of untangling her affair with a business tycoon who lavishes diamonds on her. The Muriel Resnik comedy which ran nearly 1000 performances on Broadway may be seen in Carmel on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at the Carmel dinner theatre. Zane Photo - Richard Amrhein

CARMEL VALLEY MAN FACES MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

The Monterey County Grand Jury has indicted Dan Mack Sherman of Carmel Valley for manslaughter for the fatal shooting of William Asher, 30, in the Pine Valley Campground of Los Padres National Forest on March 14.

Sherman will enter his plea to the charge at 9 a.m. Tuesday. He will be represented by Monterey attorney Richard K. Harray.

Asher, an off-duty state forest ranger, was shot in the throat while asleep in a sleeping bag at the Chews Ridge campground.

Sherman told authorities he had been awakened after midnight and had fired his revolver at what he thought were raccoons. When he heard a moan he stopped shooting, and discovered Asher had been shot. Until that point, he said, he had not been aware there were any other campers in the area.

Sherman rode his horse to Jamesburg, 90 minutes away, to telephone for help, but Asher died before a sheriff's rescue squad arrived.

Sherman is a student at California Polytechnical Institute at San Luis Obispo.

COUNTRY CLUB FASHION SHOW TO HONOR THE SIGN OF TAURUS

The fourth in the series of fashion show luncheons, "Fashions Signs of the Zodiac", will be given Tuesday, May 5th at 12:30 in the main clubhouse of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

The show will be produced and emceed by Dorothy Dean Stevens, and will feature apparel from the Club's Golf and Resort Shop. Marcy Hyman will demonstrate how "Slimming for Summer Can Be Fun" -- with the accent on Taurus for horoscopes and healthscopes.

Fashions will honor the sign of Taurus, and there will be complimentary birthday cocktails and birthday gift drawings for those whose sign is Taurus. Seven more shows are scheduled for the first Tuesday of each month, all based on "Astrology for the 20th Century" with the theme, "It's a Good Sign!"

First hearing on expanding Carmel Valley fire district

A petition to annex almost all of mid-Carmel Valley to the existing Carmel Valley Fire Protection District will be considered at a meeting of the Local Agency Formation Commission next Tuesday.

The public hearing will begin at 8 p.m. in the Board of Supervisors chambers at the County Courthouse in Salinas.

At issue is whether or not a vast chunk of Carmel Valley, stretching roughly from Rancho Fiesta on the east to the new Casa Oaks development beyond Hacienda Carmel on the west should be annexed to the present fire department located in the Village.

Proponents of annexation envision a new fire substation located somewhere in the mid-Valley area, probably in the vicinity of the Mid-Valley Shopping Center. This new fire station and its crew, organized and trained by Fire Chief Chip Collins, would be equipped to arrive at the scene of a fire in this area within about five minutes.

At present, all of Carmel Valley west of Rancho Fiesta is covered by the State Forestry Division fire station at Carmel Hill, next to Community Hospital. The average running time from that station to mid-Valley is 15 minutes, at best.

Because they live so far from a fire station, property owners in the mid-Valley pay the highest fire insurance premiums on the books, Class 10. In contrast, homeowners within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District are in a Class 6 or 7 category, a difference of 22 to 24 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

BOUNDARY QUESTION

Arthur Moore, assistant County Administrative Officer, said on Monday that the Local Agency Formation would probably pay particular attention to the proposed western boundaries of the expanded district.

Because Hacienda Carmel and Del Mesa Carmel are already part of a special fire district, service area 43, he said there could be some confusion if the enlarged district includes the new subdivision to the west of Hacienda Carmel.

"We don't know if area 43 plans to get its own firehouse (its truck is presently stationed at the Carmel Hill station) but if it did, there might be too many fire houses in that area," he explained.

The effort to annex the mid-Valley to the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District has been led by Russell Stolfi, a professor of modern European history at the Naval Postgraduate School, and other members of the Tierra Grande Property Owners Association.

After the public hearing next week, the Local Agency Formation Commission could approve or deny the request for annexation, or call for further study on the matter.

If it is approved, the County will help in trying to locate a suitable acre for a fire station. It has been estimated that it would take about 18 months to receive delivery on a new fire engine, because they are all made to specification.

FIRE CALLS

The Carmel Valley Fire Department answered two calls Thursday night last week. The first came at 7:30 p.m. when a garbage can under the eaves of the Community Center caught fire. There was no damage to the building from the fire, which was apparently caused by a lighted cigarette or children playing with matches.

The second call that evening came at 9:13 p.m. from M.F. McNulty of 42 West Carmel Valley Road. The roof of the McNulty's house, owned by Harvey Deal, caught fire, causing about $500 damage. Fire Chief Chip Collins said a defective flue from an oil-fired furnace apparently started the blaze.

The Fire Department also answered a call shortly after noon on Saturday to put out a fire in a car on Aliso Road owned by Gary Kitt. Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

TULARCITOS OPEN HOUSE

Tularcitos School will hold open house Thursday night for parents and all interested persons in the community. This annual Public Schools Week event will start at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room. After brief remarks by Principal George Gustafson, parents and friends may visit classrooms and talk with individual teachers.
